Note: Last Updated August 20, 2018

Note: This history was compiled by the authors with assistance from Amy Alfaro, Don Prantl and Angie Fann. Many people have visited Amacuapa and the surrounding communities and have contributed to the success of Project Amacuapa. We have not attempted to identify every person that has contributed to Project Amacuapa, however, rest assured that God knows each person by name.

As early as 1989, Carlos Escobar, a member of the El Espino congregation, was selling merchandise from the back of a pick-up on his sporadic trips from Catacamas to the Amacuapa valley. Besides selling fruit, Carlos was also sharing the gospel with those he met along the way. In Amacuapa he baptized Migdonio Cardona and his wife and a tiny congregation began to meet on Migdonio’s front porch. Carlos Escobar and Carlos Ulate took turns visiting on Sundays, and in 1990 Carlos Ulate took Don Prantl to visit the valley and make plans for improving the local economy with vo-ag projects. By 1992 Juan Mondragon, a preacher in Catacamas, was visiting Amacuapa as well. Among the first baptized by Juan Mondragon were Luciano (Chanito) Padilla and Anael Cardona. Before becoming a Christian Anael was a visiting teacher in the Amacuapa valley for the Catholic Church.

In a visit organized by Don Prantl in late January of 1995, Norberto Otero visited the town of Amacuapa for the first time. At the time Norberto was a missionary based in Trujillo. He was given the opportunity to speak to the Christians in Amacuapa. The congregation did not have a building and met under a tree in front of Chanito and Cristina’s home. After the Bible class Anael Cardona thanked the visiting party and ended his speech with these words “We have enjoyed your visit, we are always blessed by visits from other Christians, but I have a question: Is this the only time you would visit us?” Touched by Anael’s question, Norberto immediately promised to continue visiting the congregation of Amacuapa. That promise was fulfilled when several members from churches in the Trujillo area came with Norberto and visited Amacuapa the rest of the year on a monthly basis. The trip from Trujillo to Amacuapa was five hours. Two other congregations would be encouraged by these visits: San Esteban and Gualaco. Brother Manuel Rubi, a leader in San Esteban and Rigoberto Martinez in Gualaco became enthusiastic about those visits and the wonderful fellowship among the Christians at the time. Later these men would support evangelistic efforts in the Valley of Amacuapa and start new and exciting efforts in the Valley of Agalta.

In March 1995 an evangelistic campaign was held in Amacuapa and was led by Don Prantl. Dr. Amanda Madrid from Predisan joined the efforts to provide medical assistance to hundreds of people from neighboring villages. Members of the Escuela Bíblica Honduras (EBH) Team and apprentices from the Apprenticeship Program in Trujillo joined the efforts. In May, Norberto decided to move from Trujillo to Amacuapa to help further establish the congregation. Members of the Journey staff and the congregation of Buenos Aires from Trujillo came to help construct Amacuapa's first church building, and later in the summer Angie Gray led a group from Trujillo's VILLA (Village Living Adventure) program to complete the floor of the church building. EBH student interns joining Norberto included Angel Hernandez, Marel Bados, Cesar Osorto and Eberto Rodriguez. Juana Romero came to Amacuapa from Trujillo as their housekeeper and cook. Initially they stayed at the church building sleeping on the floor and later moved to a small dirt house furnished by the kindness of brother Migdonio. Months later Norberto and the students moved to a house in the center of town. This house, finally purchased in 1998, served as a base facility for visiting groups and the newly developed Project Amacuapa.

Many short-term mission groups have come through Amacuapa each year since 1995. Groups from Greater Atlanta Christian High School, Harding University, and the Raleigh churches have traveled to Amacuapa to assist an R.N. in small-scale medical clinics, do various humanitarian work projects, conduct youth retreats, direct vacation Bible schools, build church buildings, participate in evangelistic campaigns, and generate excitement about cross-cultural exchange with the church and the members of the community. Some of the groups' greatest memories were of Easter egg hunts, iguana hunting with Anael, playing with the children, heading down to the river for a baptism, and singing in both languages around a "fogata" (campfire) in the town square.

In March 1996 several students from Harding University led by Bryan Phillips, and including Ben & Amanda (Prantl) Hill, visited Norberto Otero and the congregation in Amacuapa and held a campaign. Jorge Vargas, a student from Baxter Institute in Tegucigalpa, spent six months in Amacuapa helping the congregation. In the summer of 1996, Angie Gray and Melissa Vaca from Abilene, Angie's mom, and Kyle Huhtanen and Amy Alfaro from Raleigh visited Amacuapa and nearby Manto. Several from Amacuapa, including Anael Cardona, challenged Kyle to come to live in Amacuapa. In January 1997 Kyle Huhtanen left his studies in Architecture at North Carolina State University, accepted the challenge and moved to Amacuapa. Kyle lived and worked in Amacuapa for a full two years before leaving in December 1998 to finish his studies. Kyle was supported by several members of Brooks Avenue church of Christ. Kyle worked both in the community and with the congregation of Amacuapa. One of the community projects at the time was the construction of a Peace Corps water system. Twenty three communities in and around Amacuapa worked together to install approximately 35 kilometers of pipeline. Each family was required to dig 12 meters (almost 40 feet) of pipeline each day!

In 1995 Sam Adams, a member at Brooks Avenue, met Norberto Otero via correspondence. Sam became the liaison for what had become known as Project Amacuapa. He first visited Amacuapa in 1997 and continued to visit 1-3 times per year until 2005, first joining and later leading groups.

As the work grew in Amacuapa outreach activities were initiated and Bible studies were conducted in several communities including San Antonio, El Jobo, Río Arriba, Río Abajo, and El Bebedero.

In 1997 another group from Harding University visited Amacuapa. Ed Warner and Amy Alfaro led a group of college students on a trip to Amacuapa in May and Robert Warner and Amy led another small group in October. Also, during the summer, there were VILLA members who came to support the work in Amacuapa and lived with friends and members of the local church in Amacuapa.

In 1998 the work was expanded in San Francisco de la Paz, Manto, El Jobo, Río Abajo and Río Arriba. Sometimes the work was frustrating. Kyle remembers that on one visit that he and others distributed Bibles in Río Arriba. However, on the very next visit, all of the Bibles were given back at the direction of the Catholic Church.

In San Francisco de la Paz, Marel was able to make the first contacts and establish a bold effort to reach many souls in this community. It was said that preachers had come many times to work with the people in San Francisco, but the people were reluctant to accept the message. So the town was given up as an unreachable town. But thanks to the persistence and commitment of Marel and the support of the Amacuapa Team and EBH, such a myth was proven untrue. A campaign was led by Marel and the Amacuapa team and the first Christians were added to the church by the Lord. Marel continued the work and later was joined by Rufino Sanchez, who became part of the team later that year. Rufino was a graduate of a Bible School in Panama and showed interest in supporting the work as a leader and later as the preacher for the San Francisco de la Paz congregation.

In 1998 Victor Flores and members of the Amacuapa team started a radio Bible program in Juticalpa which could be heard throughout the Amacuapa valley and as far as Northern Nicaragua. This weekday radio program was a refreshing voice for many brothers and sisters in the mountains of Olancho and Nicaragua. It continues to this day from the town of San Francisco de la Paz and is a source of outreach, teaching, and communication to the churches in the Amacuapa valley.

On October 30, 1998 Hurricane Mitch devastated much of the Catechism and Amacuapa valleys. Many were killed. Homes, roads and bridges were destroyed. Kyle's last several months in Honduras were spent working with Norberto Otero to distribute disaster relief throughout Olancho.

Also in 1998 the Brooks Avenue church of Christ made a formal commitment to support Project Amacuapa and Sam Adams was placed in charge of the project serving as deacon. The group house was purchased in 1998, with Juana Romero becoming its manager.

Kyle once again visited in Amacuapa in March 1999, and that year Norberto left the project and came to the US to obtain an MBA, marry and "settle down". Anael Cardona became the leader of Project Amacuapa. A campaign was held that year in Río Arriba.

In late 2000 the Raleigh Church of Christ was formed and accepted responsibility for Project Amacuapa. Sam Adams was appointed the deacon in charge of the project. Also that year, in response to the damage from Mitch and the resulting severe drought conditions, a program was started to provide monthly food supplements to forty families in need. Juana Romero was given the responsibility for managing the procurement and distribution of this benevolence.

In 2003 a new church building and a clinic were constructed in Amacuapa. The land for the facility was donated to the church by Chela Cardona, the mother of Anael. It is large enough to accommodate the large church building, a clinic and courtyard, and a future educational facility of 3-4 classrooms. The church building was constructed to accommodate 200-300 souls, and is used to host regional events as well as the local congregation. Also in 2003, Norberto Ortero became director of EBH in the USA.

In 2004 the Honduras Missions Committee was formed at the Raleigh church of Christ. Members besides Sam Adams included Ed and Sue Warner, Robert and Miriam Warner, Carlos and Fanny Laufters, Carlos and Amy Alfaro and L. M. (Mac) Safley. At the end of the year, Juana Romero returned to Trujillo after many years of good service. Also in 2004 a place of worship was constructed in El Jobo. In March 2004 a group of men from the Raleigh Church of Christ visited Amacuapa (David Bowsman, Brian Janes, Jack Bush, Jeff Cannon, Jack Kochel, Mac Safley). Services were conducted in the Amacuapa Valley. The primary construction projects were to paint the new church building in Amacuapa and the addition of a restroom/shower facility for the clinic.

In 2005 Eduardo Torres and his wife, Ondina Ayala, agreed to manage the Project Amacuapa Group House, which has gradually been expanded. It can accommodate up to twenty visitors at a time. Also in early 2005, the clinic became functional. Nubia Zuniga was hired as the nurse/manager, and Ondina Ayala was hired as the nurse's assistant. The clinic's capabilities have expanded. As many as 100 people receive medical attention each month at the clinic. Some travel more than twenty miles to receive attention. Patients requiring medical attention beyond the capability of the clinic are referred to Predisan, a fully staffed medical facility in Catacamas that is supported by various Churches of Christ in the United States. Patients that can not afford medical attention are assisted by the benevolence committees of their local congregations. In March 2005 another group from the Raleigh congregation visited Amacuapa (Carlos Laufters, Mike Hairston, Brian Janes, James Peterman, Jeff Cannon and Mac Safley). Improvements were made on the clinic and a roof was installed at the new church building in El Jobo. Also a solar lighting system was installed at the Group House.

In 2005 Sue Shamblee (clinic) and Brian Janes (construction) also joined the Honduras Committee. In July of 2005 Sam Adams resigned as the deacon in charge of Project Amacuapa to be able to provide additional support to his wife who was chronically ill at the time. L. M. (Mac) Safley, Jr. was appointed as the deacon in charge of Project Amacuapa. In the fall of 2005 Anael Cardona's title was changed to Project Coordinator. David Chacon agreed to become the Project Administrator, and Kyle Huhtanen was identified as the Predisan Liaison.

In 2006 David Bowsman was added to the Honduras Committee to develop a children's program. During this year several other important things were accomplished. A place of worship was constructed in Rio Abajo. Also Juan Perez began working in Salama. A group (Group of Four -Charles Safley, Jim Morrill, Jim Green, L. M. Safley, Jr.) was formed to work with farmers in the Amacuapa Valley. As a result of some of the efforts of the Group of Four an agricultural cooperative is being formed - Asociacion De Gandaderos Y Agricultores Del Valle de Amacuapa. In March 2006 a group from the Raleigh Church of Christ visited the Amacuapa Valley (David Bowsman, James Peterman, Brian Janes, Jeff Cannon, Kelly Cannon, Tanner Cannon, Tyler Lee, Mike Hairston and Mac Safley). Joining the group were Jim Green (Brooks Avenue) and Jim Morrill (Kansas). Additional improvements were made to the clinic and a concrete floor was installed in the El Jobo church building. Jim and Jim worked with Chanito Padilla on possible agricultural projects. The group also participated in a campaign in Jimasque.

In March 2007 a group from the Raleigh Church of Christ (Charles Safley, Jim Green, James and Ben Peterman, Jonny Cannon, Brian and Brianne Janes, David and Kate Bowsman, Sue Shamblee, Michael Holland, Mac Safley) visited Project Amacuapa. Charles and Jim concentrated on working with local producers in pasture management and business plans. The also helped plant the seed for a garden project. Mac, James, Brian and others installed a solar well water pump system for providing water for livestock and the garden. The Construction Team (Brian, James, Ben, Jonny, Michael) led the effort to build forty beds for children which were delivered throughout Project Amacuapa. Sue Shamblee worked with the clinic staff. David, Brianne and Kate conducted various children's programs at the school and church building. The group also visited Catacamas and coordinated with David Chacon.

In late June and early July of 2007 Mac Safley visited Honduras. The first stop was San Marcos de Colon where Eduardo Torres and Chanito Padilla of Amacuapa were participating in a Healing Hands International (HHI) course on drip irrigation and raised bed gardening. Chanito and Eduardo rode back to Amacuapa with David Goolsby, Dagoberto Nunez (interpreter) and Mac. While in Amacuapa David, Dagoberto and Mac made improvements on the solar water pump system and coordinated regarding the garden projects. We also visited Catacamas to coordinate with David Chacon.

In November 2007 Mac Safley returned to visit Project Amacuapa. The focus was to meet with the ministers to plan for the work in 2008. Dagoberto Nunez served as the interpreter. There was also time to coordinate with Eduardo Torres and Chanito Padilla regarding the garden project. Several raised beds had been constructed and a small portion of the garden had been planted. Anael Cardona announced that he would be leaving Project Amacuapa at the end of 2007. He will continue to preach for the Manto congregation and will be supported by another group.

Another visit was made to Project Amacuapa in March 2008. The group consisted of Heather and Jonathan Holland, Brian and Brittney Janes, David and Kate Bowsman, James and Ben Peterman, Jeff and Tanner Cannon, Sue Shamblee, Jim Green, Mike Hairston, Charles Safley and Mac Safley. The Children's Team (David, Kate, Brittney, Heather) presented several programs at the local school and coordinated the distribution of shoes (Crocs) and children's clothing. Sue continued her work with the clinic and fitted a number of people with glasses. Brian, James, Ben, Tanner, Jeff and Mike worked on completing a storage building at the group house and made a number of needed improvements to the group house. Jim and Charles worked with Eduardo Torres and Chanito Padilla on the garden (garden and business management). Jim conducted seminars in El Jobo and Amacuapa on pasture management. The garden is in full production and a large quantity of produce has been sold. Eduardo Torres and Chanito Padilla conducted a class to train ten men and women in drip irrigation and raised bed gardening.

In June 2008 Mac Safley accompanied by Dagoberto Nunez (interpreter from Tegucigalpa) visited the Project Amacuapa congregations. All of the Project Amacuapa congregations were visited and visits to homes were made. In addition we met with Chanito and Eduardo who are helping to manage the garden project. Due to the temporary closure of the airport in Tegucigalpa Mac flew into/out of San Pedro Sula.

In November 2008 Mac Safley accompanied by Dagoberto Nunez visited the Project Amacuapa congregations. We visited and encouraged the Project Amacuapa ministers. A dedication was held for the improvements to the clinic in Amacuapa (floor space more than doubled). Each year since 2005 the clinic has had between 650 and 1000 patient visits. A decision was made to turn over management of the garden project to Migdonio Cardona.

In March 2009 Jim Green and Charles Safley accompanied by Dagoberto Nunez visited the Project Amacuapa congregations. Several seminars were held with school children regarding developing home gardens and appropriate food preparation. Jim and Charles also spent time working with Migdonio Cardona on the garden project.

Another group trip to Project Amacuapa occurred in April 2009. Those participating included Seth Cannon, Jonny Cannon, Mike Hairston, Chuckie Hairston, Bill Yinger, Robin Forrest, Bailey Forrest, David Bowsman, Kate Bowsman and Mac Safley. Twenty four beds were constructed and delivered. Significant progress was made in installing electrical systems to the clinic and Group House in Amacuapa. 500 pairs of shoes were distributed to the Project Amacuapa congregations. Time was spent with Migdonio regarding the garden project. Four math classes were presented to teachers and students. Quite a bit of time was spent with the clinic staff. Improvements were made to the Group House.

In August 2009 Mac Safley accompanied by Dagoberto Nunez visited the Project Amacuapa congregations. Three seminars were delivered on establishing home/school gardens and preparation of garden produce for consumption. Time was spent working with Migdonio Cardona on the garden project. It is noteworthy that in 2009 Anael Murillo was able to help start a congregation in El Jute which met in the home of Oman Almendarez. There have been several baptisms in El Jute. We were able to visit all of the Project Amacuapa ministers.

In December 2009 the village of Amacuapa received electrical service for the first time.

In March 2010 Bailey Forrest, Kyle Semon, Mike Hairston, Gary Selby, Wayne Cannon, Jonny Cannon and Mac Safley visited the Amacuapa Valley. Trip activities included visiting all nine Project Amacuapa congregations, constructing and delivering 18 beds for children, improving the wiring systems in the Group House and clinic, delivering food packets and conducting a seminar for the ministers. The demonstration garden continues to be visited by others desiring to improved agricultural production.

Mac Safley traveled to Olancho again in July 2010. He was accompanied by Dagoberto Nunez. We met with the Project Amacuapa ministers and also conducted garden seminars in the communities of Jagua and La Lima. The clinic nurses, Nubia Zuniga and Ondina Ayala reported increased patient numbers at the clinic. We presented a seminar in Catacamas on sustaining the work of the church which was well attended.

In March 2011 Gary Selby, Kyle Semon, Brian Janes, Mike Hairston, Kim Bottoms and Mac Safley visited Amacuapa. During the trip a children's program (Bible based puppet skit) was presented to approximately 650 children and adults. In addition 130 food packets were distributed. Gary spoke on sermon development at the ministers' seminar. We were also able to construct some furniture for the clinic and Group House (tables and bookcases) and to participate in the construction of a roof on Justa Sevilla's house. Migdonio Cardona continues to manage the demonstration garden.

In September 2011 Mac Safley visited Honduras. Dagoberto Nunez served as the translator. Dago and Mac first visited the San Miguel congregation in Siguatepeque before traveling to Catacamas on September 4. On September 5 David Chacon along with Juan Blass Cardona, Eduardo Torres, Chanito Padilla, Dago and Mac visited 13 villages in the Amacuapa Valley that did not have congregations. The activity was continued on September 6 and 18 villages were visited. A garden seminar was held in Rio Arriba on September 7 in the morning and another was held in Amacuapa that afternoon. After meeting with the Project Amacuapa ministers on the morning of September 8 we traveled to Catacamas to hold a seminar on sustaining the work of the congregation. On September 9 Dago and Mac returned to Tegucigalpa and Mac returned to the USA on September 10.

In March 2012 (March 3-10) Glenn Holland, Gary Selby, Bailey Forrest, Aaron Gallagher, Jim Green, Mike Hairston and Mac Safley traveled to Honduras. Bailey and Gary concentrated on holding a two-day seminar with the Project Amacuapa ministers on fruits of the spirit. Glenn and Aaron worked on constructing 27 beds for children. Mike continued electrical system improvements and Jim worked with Dagoberto on several projects including the construction of an innovative wood-fired cooking stove/oven. On Wednesday the group began visiting all of the Project Amacuapa congregations and delivered the beds and gifts packages of food. The group traveled to Tegucigalpa on March 9 and returned to the USA on March 10.

The Project Amacuapa clinic continues to serve much of the Valle de Amacuapa. Between 60 and 80 patients are seen in a typical month. Once a month a doctor visits the clinic. In early 2012 a self-contained water system (well, pump and reservoir) was completed for the clinic. Nubia Zuniga and Ondina Ayala continue to staff the clinic.

In August 2012 Mac again visited Honduras. Prior to driving to Olancho, Mac and Dagoberto visited La Paz and the congregation where the widow of Medardo Gomez attends. There was opportunity of visiting with Dwight and Joanne Tomkins of Catacamas and Noe Perez of Tegucigalpa. Church leadership was the theme of seminars presented in Amacuapa and Catacamas.

In February 2013 a group from Raleigh (Linda Sutter, Brian and Beth Janes, Gary Selby, Jim Green, Jonny Cannon and Mac Safley) visited Amacuapa. Linda and Beth held seminars for the ladies in San Francisco de la Paz, Amacuapa and Rio Arriba. Brian and Jonny worked to make improvements at the elementary school in Amacuapa and painting Bible school classrooms. Food packages were delivered to all Project Amacuapa congregations. Jim and Dagoberto Nunez concentrated on working with German Padilla on his honey bee production. On Saturday a meal for the community of Amacupa was hosted by the group. Two pigs were roasted for the activity.

In August 2013 Mac Safley visited Honduras. A seminar was held in San Francisco de la Paz on "Growing the Church in Honduras". Brothers from several congregations attended. We also visited with Dwight and Joanne Tomkins in Catacamas and learned of their projects/activities. David Chacon, Dagoberto Nunez and Mac worked making plans for future visits. The church growth seminar was also presented to ~ 50 members from the congregations in and around Catacamas.

A group trip to Honduras was planned for February 2014. However, early in January 2014 it was learned that while on the way back from visiting with the Project Amacuapa ministers David Chacon was forced off the road, kidnapped and later released after being terrorized for several hours. David's truck plus personal items were stolen. Because of this the group trip was cancelled. In March 2014 Mac Safley visited with David Chacon in Catacamas. The Project Amacuapa ministers traveled to Catacamas for our meeting. A seminar on the selection of elders and deacons was presented. A couple of weeks after this visit Brother Noe Perez of Tegucigalpa presented another seminar on church leadership. It is good to note that at least one congregation in Olancho has now appointed its first elders.

In August 2014 (August 4-8) Adam Hudson and Mac Safley made a brief visit to Honduras to encourage the Project Amacuapa ministers. We traveled to Amacuapa on August 5 and met with all of the ministers. We also met with Xiomara Escobar and Ondina Ayala at the clinic. Since 2004 when the clinic was started there have been approximately 10,000 patient visits.

In February 2015 (1/31/15-2/7/15) Jim Green, Medardo Gomez and Mac Safley visited Olanco. One of the primary goals was to establish congregations in Sabana Large, La Soledad and El Bebedero. One day was spent in each location, going from door to door. Dagoberto Nunez and Jim Green worked with German Padilla to improve his honey bee project. They also constructed one of the efficient, wood burning stoves. The clinic was also visited.

Adam Hudson and Mac Safley again visited the Project Amacuapa ministers in August 2015 (8/10/15 – 8/13/2015). The emphasis was encouraging the ministers. We also had the opportunity to visit with Dwight and Joanne Tomkins in Catacamas. The ministers reported on the work in their home congregations as well as the newly established congregations. The radio program in Salama and the TV program in San Francisco de la Paz are going well.

In early 2016 (1/30/16 – 2/6/2016) Jim Green and Medardo Gomez visited Project Amacuapa. Jim along with Dagoberto Nunez concentrated on work with developmental projects (irrigated garden, honey bees, ovens, etc.) while Medardo worked with David Chacon and the Project Amacuapa ministers concentrating on Sabana Large, El Bebedero and La Soledad. Clothes and food were distributed and there were classes for children. Six were baptized in Sabana Large.

In late summer 2016 (8/31/16 – 9/2/2016) Medardo Gomez and Mac Safley traveled to Amacuapa to meet with the Project Amacuapa ministers. Prior to and after the meeting in Amacuapa David Chacon, Medardo and Mac met to evaluate the current congregations and plan for future efforts. Evangelistic efforts remain concentrated on La Soledad, El Bebedero and Sabana Larga. Project Amacuapa ministers are receiving first aid training (Red Cross) and spiritual leadership training.

A group from Raleigh visited Amacuapa in early 2017 (February 13-20). Included in the group were Jonathan Holland, Brian Janes, Medardo Gomez, Mike Hairston and Mac Safley. We were joined by Dagoberto Nunez and Dwight Tomkins. David and Suyapa Chacon did a great job of coordinating and supplying the local trip needs. Among the trip activities: health training, wooden bench construction, Group House improvements/repair (plumbing and electrical), children's programs (over 150 students), health care (doctor and nurse)(86 patients seen), food and clothing distribution, Bible studies, a complete inventory and re-organization of the tool building and improvements to the new equipment shed. Adelid Hernandez has joined the Project Amacuapa ministers and is working with Eberto Rodrigez in San Francisco de la Paz, Regadillo and San Antonio.

Tony and Kelly Dickey of the Arkadelphia (Arkansas) Church of Christ led a group of 14 to Amacuapa from 6/17-6/21. Many of the group were college students and the primary objective was to pour concrete floors. Six different homes received new concrete floors. In addition the group worked with the local schools, resupplied the clinic in Amacuapa and hosted a fiesta. David Chacon supported the group.

In August (8/29-8/31) Medardo Gomez and Mac Safley visited Honduras and met with the Project Amacuapa ministers in Amacuapa. Primary emphasis was placed on the work at the new target areas of La Soledad, El Bebedero, Regadillo and Salama. Leadership training continues.

In February 2018 (2/5-2/12) a group of nine Christians (Aaron Gallagher, Medardo Gomez, Elisha Freeman, Mike Hairston, Brian Janes, Tony Dickey, Kelly Dickey, Linda Sutter and Mac Safley) visited the Project Amacuapa congregations. During the trip beds were constructed and distributed, concrete floors were poured, ladies programs and health clinics were conducted, repairs/improvements were made at the Group House in Amacuapa, the Project Amacuapa ministers received training and the group hosted a meal for many from the community. David Chacon supported the group.

A group of 16 from Arkansas lead by Tony and Kelly Dickey visited Project Amacuapa. They arrived on 6/25 and departed on 7/4 and returned to the USA on 7/5. The group constructed and delivered beds, poured many concrete floors, held VBS in five schools, held ladies seminars and health clinics, hosted a childrens' party and delivered medicine and equipment to the clinic in Amacuapa. David Chacon supported the group.

In August 2018 (8/6-8/8) Medardo Gomez and Mac Safley made an administrative trip to Project Amacuapa. They along with David Chacon presented a seminar on the role of elders. The ministers were encouraged to identify men that qualify to serve as elders. David Chacon continues to work with the Project Amacuapa congregations on this matter.
